District Governor's Message

Celebrate Literacy!

Mary Kessens

If I might contribute my current position in life to one skill, I would claim literacy. The act of reading has expanded my world from the moment I learned how to recognize Dick and Jane. Coming to town on Saturdays to visit the library in my little rural town was the treat of the week. That I got to take the books home with me was the second treat. When other young girls were reading teen romances, I was behind the covers and in a faraway place with A Wrinkle in Time—still my all time favorite book. I learned that girls and women could have adventure, be scientists, make decisions and save the world or worlds as the case may be. I learned that books could be dangerous things when the librarian wouldn't let me check out Rosemary's Baby because my mother wouldn't approve! Reading it became one small step to testing other limits of the world in which I grew up.

My secret desire became science fiction novels...A Canticle for Leibowitz, Dune, The Foundation Trilogy, Left Hand of Darkness, Time Storm, Dragon Riders of Pern.... Thru these books I learned about science, diversity, creativity and that interaction with your world—whatever that world might be—could change the world.

Novels from around the planet Earth opened my world...from House of Spirits set in Chile through Nelson Mandela's Long Walk to Freedom to Things Fall Apart and the modern day Purple Hibiscus, both set in Nigeria in different periods. Many other books of history and fiction of India, China and Europe passed before my eyes and through my heart and mind.

Modern novels of America educated my view. I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings, Hawaii and all the Michener novels, A Thousand Acres and Moo all told stories of the human condition, about both the cruelty and the joy of life everywhere.

I would like to forget all of those college textbooks and references, but they are there, too, adding to accumulated knowledge.

Literacy makes a difference in lives. It molds minds, informs decisions and creates a legacy wherever books exist. Rotarians who donate books, read to youngsters, and donate scholarships change the world. From Good Night Moon to Advanced Physics, our District Rotarians' contribution to literacy is vast. We may never know the impact of our library book donation, but we can be sure a mind will dream a new idea because of it.

To celebrate the wonders of literacy, read the Celebrate Literacy Month article from RI in this month's newsletter. And, take some time to inventory your list of favorite books. Share this list at your next Rotary meeting to learn how your Rotary friends have developed through reading and continue to share literacy with others.

Special reminders from the District Governor:

- Applications for Presidential Citations are due to the District Governor by March 31, 2008. Follow these links to Download the brochure, the nomination form for Rotary clubs, and the form for Rotaract and Interact clubs.
- Sign up your Club Leadership Team for District Assembly on March 29, 2008. This is the best opportunity around to start planning for the next Rotary year.
- Register now for District Conference, April 25-26, 2008. On line registration offers a discount. Come and enjoy the facilities at the Chula Vista Resort in the Wisconsin Dells. Here international experts share their knowledge about effective projects and the success stories of Rotary International. See you there!

Best Wishes in Rotary,

Mary

District Conference Update

Rooms and registrations are going quickly. Spaces are filling up. Sign up as soon as possible for "Rotarians Sharing Rotary", our 2008 District Conference. We hope to keep you entertained with music, quizzes and raffles as well as meaningful presentations by Rotary partners worldwide. These include Engineers Without Borders, World Vision and the US Agency for International Development. We will have presentations on Rotary youth programs, our first ever Vocational Group Study Exchange with Argentina, membership development and leadership opportunities beyond your club. Celebrate with the winners of the Presidential Citation, Foundation recognition and Service Above Self awards.

If you would like to share your favorite project or best fundraiser with the rest of the district, contact our conference committee ASAP to join in our "Pop-up Presentations" and highlight your success this year. Display tables will also be available.

Remember to bring your families to share in the fun of the indoor water parks, golfing, river cruise, spas and amenities of the newly remodeled Chula Vista resort.

See you soon at "Rotarians Sharing Rotary", April 25-26, 2008 in the Wisconsin Dells.
